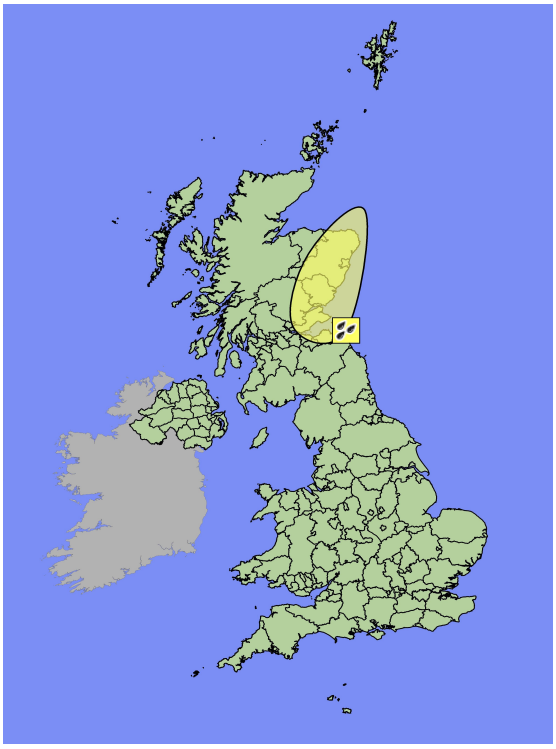
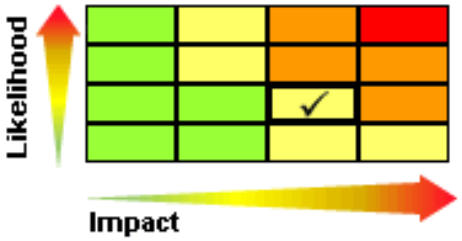
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
The frontal zone giving persistent and locally heavy rain on Saturday is expected to move slowly and erratically northwest through Sunday. This could lead to a further 10-20 mm and locally 30 mm especially over east-facing up slopes.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Alert of Rain

Valid from 00:00 on Sun, 08th Jul 2012 until 23:59 on Sun, 08th Jul 2012

Further persistent and occasionally heavy rain is likely on Sunday in parts of Eastern Scotland. The heaviest and most persistent rain is expected to transfer northwards through the day.

The public should be prepared for the likelihood of surface water flooding and some disruption to travel and outdoor activities.
